POETRY.

The Homestead.

It is not as it used to be
When you and I were young;
When round each elm and maple tree
They honey-suckles clung;
But still I love the cottage where
I passed my early years,
Though not a single face is there
That memory endears.

It is not as it used to be,
The moss is on the roof,
And from their nest beneath the eaves
The swallow keeps aloof,
The robins—how the used to sing
When you and I were young;
And flashed about the wild bee's wing
The opening flowers among!

It is not as it used to be!
The voices loved of yore,
And the forms that we were wont to see,
We see and hear no more,
No more! Alas, we look in vain
For those to whom we clung,
And loved as we can love but once,
When you and I were young.

STRANGE RETRIBUTION.

A SINGULAR STORY.

Henri Du Barre, a young French artist, became enamored of the only daughter of a well-to-do aubergiste in the town of Circassone, in the south of France.

Lucille Montaigne had beauty and money, and Henri Du Barre had wit and talent; but these latter were no fair equivalent for the former in the eyes of the purse proud father, who declared that no daughter of his should marry a poor man, though he were blessed with the wisdom of Solomon.

Now Lucille loved Henri—at least she told him so—but she was too prudent to elope with him and risk disinheritance; for after all, what was love without money?—poverty coming in at the door would send it flying out of the window.

Poor Henri was in despair. He really did love Lucille, whether she did him or not—loved her madly; and his was one of those fiery natures which makes love a wild terrible passion.

How much money was necessary to make him her equal in the eyes of her worthy father. The aubergiste named the sum. It was large, and Henri sighed, and felt more despair at his heart than ever. Suddenly he brightened up with the recollection, that he had youth and genius, and that in some large city, Paris perhaps, where the latter was appreciated he might acquire both fortune and fame.

But, would Lucille wait?—Well, Lucille was willing to wait a while—for just then, as she admitted herself, she could not think of one she liked better than the poor artist; but everything earthly must have limit, and the fair coquette thought her patience ought not to extend longer than a year.

A year is a very short time for a man to acquire fame and fortune, with the latter depending on the former; but Henri was young, and youth is sanguine, and at all events he would make the trial, hoping great things, and knowing he could do no worse than fail.

So he finished his engagements hurriedly, declined any new ones, sold a few pictures on hand for a moderate sum, gathered together his scanty effects, bade his friends and Lucille adieu, and with a hopeful and heavy heart, set off for the metropolis of France.

It was a long, long journey from Circassone to Paris in the conveyance of the period when Henri Du Barre made it; and it was nearly two weeks before he reached the gay capital. And then began his struggles with poverty; which clung to him in spite of his hopes, his exertions and prayers, for six weary months when he gave up in despair, and secretly left the city to beg his way back to Circassone, see his Lucille once more, bid her an eternal adieu, and end a life no longer of the least value to its possessor.

Henri Du Barre set out from Paris afoot and alone, depending solely upon the charity of the French peasants for food and lodging. He had six sous in his pocket when he started, and these he invested in a deadly poison, which he carried as a dernier resort, determined not to suffer beyond what nature might reasonably bear, but which it was his hope to retain till he had again seen Lucille.

In this manner he reached and passed through Lyons, foot sore, ragged and disheartened—an object indeed of commiseration. Twenty leagues beyond Lyons, in passing through a long, dark, lonely wood, he met a Jew, carrying a heavy pack on his back. The poor artist asked the Israelite for charity; his appeal was answered with a few coins, for which he thanked the giver, and offered to carry his pack.

“O, no—it is nothing—it is nothing—a few old clothes only,” returned the Jew hurriedly—so hurriedly, and with such evident uneasiness, in fact, as to awaken suspicion in the mind of the young artist, that it contained something of great value.

Then it was that a wild vague, undefined desire to possess it first took possession of the man who was now going home to die wretchedly, but whom two thousand francs might yet bless with life and happiness—when the mind of man takes a highly criminal bend, it seems as if some evil demon whispers the most plausible reason for a wicked course of happiness.

Henri Du Barre, who had never before thought of harming a human being, now glanced furtively and almost shudderingly around him, with the dark and wicked thought in his brain, that if this old man was dead, and he possessor of his pack, he might yet have a bright and glorious future. It was a dreary, dismal spot in the thick wood where they stood, and no human eye save theirs was looking upon the scene—why should this old man be cumbered with wealth, which could not bring him one title of joy that it might him who coveted its possession? He could not live many years, that old man, at most, and he might die at any minute, and his valuable effects become the inheritance of strangers. What mattered a few years, more or less, to him—a wandering and despised old Jew. And why should he, the poor miserable artist, hesitate between the Jew's life and his own? Were not all living creatures bound by the inner law of their being to act in self defence even to the taking of life when necessary to sustain their own. And would he not die should the Jew live—and would he not live should the Jew die? And even should the secret be discovered, would it be anything worse than death at last! He had bought poison for himself, and why should not another take it for salvation—in which event he would have the means to procure more, and could always as now carry his life in his hands.

The Jew had bidden him good day and was trudging along at a slow, steady pace, while these wild, wicked thoughts were coursing through the brain of the latter with all the plausibility of the truth. Suddenly the Jew stopped, produced a little flask, and raised it to his lips. Ah! that flask! the devil was tempting young Du Barre to crime and here was the opportunity.

“My good friend,” called the artist to the Jew, “I'm very faint; will you give me a few drops of that wine?”

“I will give you half,” said the Israelite halting.

The artist advanced tremulously, produced the poison, and concealed it in his hand as he approached his victim, and, under pretence of wiping the mouth of the flask dropped it in. Then he pretended to drink, and handed it back with thanks, begging the Jew to drink his health at their final parting. Isaac complied, and they separated, each going a different way.

As soon as Henri was out of sight of the Israelite, he entered the wood, and returned in an oblique direction, until he came in sight of his victim, who was now writhing in the agonies of death, and crying for mercy. A few minutes more, and he was still—the dread work done. Dragging the body from the road and concealing it, the murderer next, carried the pack far back, tore it open, and found it indeed contained old clothes. He had murdered an old man, and got nothing for it. He threw the garments from him with the wild action of remorse and despair.

Suddenly he hears a clink as of money. Then he began to examine the old garments, and found, to his almost mad joy, that they contained immense treasures in gold and jewels—diamonds, sapphires, pearls and rubies, to the value as he thought, of ten thousand francs, but in reality more than a hundred thousand.

Far in the depths of that dark wood, the murderer hid the most precious stones, to be brought forth in after time. There were two thousand five hundred francs in money; and with this amount he started home, no longer a poor man, but alas! even further than ever from being a happy one.

He traveled in his ragged clothes as far as Nismes, fearful of spending one of his ill-acquired coins sooner; but at Nismes he ventured to purchase a new and genteel suit, and in this, shortly after, appeared before Lucille, showed her father the sum required, which he represented as having been honestly obtained in his profession, claimed her hand.

In due time Henri Du Barre married Lucille Montaigne, and happy were all at the wedding but the guilty groom, who was never to know happiness again. He kept his secret, however, and profited by it, making an occasional journey to the dismal spot of his crime, under pretence of traveling on business. He took away and disposed of the jewels one by one and gradually grew opulent, and was regarded by all who knew him as an honest man of mark.

But the remembrance of his crime had a strange fascination for him, and much of his time was spent in brooding over it in secret.

Being an artist, he at length naturally conceived the idea of painting the scene of the murder; and he finally drew it in miniature, on ivory, picturing himself in the act of dragging the dead body of the Jew into the forest, whose features from memory only, he delineated with wonderful fidelity. And as if this were not enough to satisfy his morbid infatuation, he wrote underneath:

“Isaac, a Jew, murdered by Henri Du Barre, Sept. 10th, in a dark wood, about twenty leagues south of Lyons.”

It was a strange, insane idea, that of preserving a memory of the horrible deed in this manner; but this miniature of the scene he had set in a belt around his waist.

But the strangest part of this horrible affair is yet to be told. On his last visit to the forest for the last jewel that yet remained of the proceeds of his awful crime, he was shot dead by a highwayman, when on searching his person, he found the miniature, and recognized the features of the murdered Jew—his own father.

This produced so strange an impression upon the second murderer, that he carried it to the authorities, and made a full confession of his own crime. A full and thorough investigation took place, and among the papers of Du Barre, was found one containing the sentiment of the whole transaction, as we have here recorded it.

The second murderer, the son of the Jew, was subsequently executed, and so ended the chain of dark and bloody events.

Truly, the ways of providence are wonderful and mysterious.

Once a wag, when called upon to hand in to the Assessors his tax list wrote thus:

“One old house all out of repair,
Two hogs, two sheep and a poor old mare;
Thus you have my honest list,
Pray don't let the toll exceed my grist.”

Jim Snicks puts everything to use. His wife has a bald head, and he strops his razor on it—the scamp.

WOMEN AND THE PRESS.—With the growth of the press has grown the direct influence of educated women on the world's affairs. Mute in the senate and in the church, their opinions have found a voice in the sheets of ten thousand readers. First in the list of their achievements came admirable novels; not because fiction can be written without knowledge, but because it only requires that knowledge which they can most easily attain, the result of insight into humanity. As periodicals have waxed numerous, so has female authorship waxed strong. The magazines demanded short graphic papers, observation, wit and moderate learning—woman demanded work such as they could perform at home, and ready pay upon performance; the two wants met, and the female sex has become a very important element in the fourth estate.—Hesperian.

Taking the Census.

Our Marshals are already busy looking up the census. Their duties lead to some queer little scenes. We give one which came off the other day.

“Who is the head of this family?”
“That depends on circumstances. If its before 11 o'clock, its me husband; if after 11, its meself.”

“Why is this division?”
“Because after that hour he's as drunk as a piper, and unable to take care of himself, let alone his family.”

“What is his age?”
“Coming next Michaelmas he will lack a month of being as owld as Finnegan. You know Finnegan?”

“No, I don't know Finnegan, and if I did, it would not help matters. Is your husband an alien?”

“Oh, thin, he's ailin intirely. He has rheumatics worse than owld Donnelly; he was tied double with them.”

“How many male members have you in the family?”

“Niver a one.”

“What, no boys at all?”

“Boys, is it?” Ah, murder, go home. We have boys enough to whip four loaves before breakfast.”

“When were you married?”

“The day Pat Doyle left Tipperary for Ameriky. Ah, well I know it. A sunshiner day never gilded the sky of swate owld Ireland.”

“What was the condition of your husband before marriage?”

“Divil a man more miserable. He said that if I did not give him a promise within two or three weeks, he'd blow his brains out wid a crow bar.”

“What was he at the time of your marriage, a widower or bachelor?”

“A which? A widower did you say?”

Ah, now go away wid your nonsense, is it the likes of me that would take up wid a second hand husband! Do I look like the wife of a widower? A poor divil, all legs and consumption, like a sick turkey. A widower, indade! May I niver be blessed, if I'd not rather live an owld maid and bring up my family on buttermilk and praties.”

REWARDED.—Capt. Simmons, Agent of Wells, Fargo & Co., at Sacramento, presented last week to officers Dan Gay and Charley O'Neill, with fifteen hundred dollars, as a reward for services rendered in defending the treasure boxes of Wells, Fargo & Co., in the late attempt at robbing the stage from Forrest Hill to Auburn.

“Dennis, darlint, och Dennis, what is it you're doing?” “Whist Bid-dy, I'm trying an experiment!” “Murder! what is it?” did you say? “Why, it's giving hot water to the chickens I am, so they'll be after laying boiled eggs.”

THE KNIGHT'S LANDING NEWS.

SATURDAY : : : : NOVEMBER 19, 1859.

To Our Patrons.

We are pleased to say to our Patrons, that next week the News will make its appearance much enlarged, this is made necessary by the increased advertising patronage.

The additional length of the columns will be equivalent to about two and a half columns of reading matter. We hope that our efforts to improve our paper will be met by a corresponding effort on the part of our friends to extend its circulation. Come, send in your names and take your own County Paper and encourage home enterprise, and let us labor together for the advancement of our mutual interests.

Thanksgiving.

His Excellency Gov. Weller, has by proclamation set apart Thursday next the 24th inst., to be observed by the people of California as a day of thanksgiving to God for the manifold blessing bestowed upon us during the past year. We believe that most of the other States of the Union have fixed upon the day for a like purpose.

It is highly becoming in us as a people thus to be mindful of, and to manifest our gratitude for the rich favors received at the hands of a bountiful Providence who has so wisely ordained all things to suit the necessities of his creatures.

The people of the United States have much to be thankful for. Possessing a country stretching across the entire continent from ocean to ocean and from the frozen regions of the north to the perpetual summers of the south, containing within this vast area lakes of marvelous magnitude and rivers of world wide renown, rich in all the minerals used by man, and so diversified in climate, soil and productions as to contribute to all our temporal wants. Enjoying the freest and best system of government known to civilization and at peace with all nations—surely a people so highly favored, as to be the recipients of these innumerable blessings so freely bestowed cannot but join in thanksgiving and praise to the dispenser of all good.

Our Town.

Knight's Landing has had, heretofore, to lay under the reproach of being an immoral and dissipated place and which in fact is not the case to the extent claimed by some. This place has fewer intemperate men, than any other village of equal population in the State. It is true, that only a small number of the citizens make any great pretensions to the strict letter of christianity. But at the same time we have no designing hypocrites. There is seldom such a thing as a fight or street brawl. The citizens are more united and of one mind, than is common even in the "Old Atlantic States," in towns of like importance.

We hope that in the future strangers visiting or passing through our town will not exhibit so great a want of common courtesy or decorum as to speak disparagingly of our citizens.

This place is destined, to become the most important town in the county—the prejudice of many "to the contrary notwithstanding." The busy stroke of the hammer, saw and plane indicate that the mechanics are doing a cash business.

Families are moving in faster, than houses can be built. All the lots on Front street are taken. Messrs. John Slagle and James McClintock are about commencing to build on Front street between Koon's and Phillip's a fine saloon 24 by 40 feet and cabinet shop of the same dimensions.

GRAIN DISTRIBUTOR.—The Stockton Republican says that Messrs. Jones & Hewlett of that place, have a very clever contrivance for sowing grain. It is a very simple little coffee mill looking institution. Mr. Hewlett occasionally straps it to himself and marches to and fro in front of his store, in a solemn procession of one, sowing Main street in oats, barley, or wheat, as the case may be. A guage distributes the cereals thinly or thickly, as may be desired.

The Mails.

We would indeed consider him a public benefactor, who would lend his influence to a successful prosecution of the effort to increase the mail facilities between Sacramento city and Tehama via this place Colusa and the intermediate post-offices.

A weekly mail is, certainly better than no mail at all; but if it ever did serve the purposes of the people on this route it surely does not do it now.

It may be, that this route does not now, more than defray its own expenses, perhaps it does not pay its way, but if a tri-weekly mail was put upon this route tomorrow, we think that in three months it would be as near a self-sustaining route as it is to-day with a weekly mail.

The history of the past teach us that whenever the facilities of transportation are increased, there is a corresponding increase in mail matter to be transported and more especially is this the case in a country so prolific in resources as is the country traversed by this mail route. So far as we of Knight's Landing are concerned we do not perhaps feel so sensibly the want of more frequent mails particularly, as a medium of obtaining news papers, for we have a line of tri-weekly stages plying between this place and Sacramento through which we are supplied with the dailies from that city, but we are only a small portion of those desiring mail accommodations, and all the intermediate country north of us on the west bank of the Sacramento river are now without even stage communication and are forced to wait the tardy movements of a weekly mail to obtain their letters and papers. Shall we have a tri-weekly mail? What say the papers north of us—what say the people along the line? Is it not better to move in the matter now than to wait any longer? We pledge a cordial support to any move in the right direction having for its object an increase of our mail facilities.

The Harper's Ferry Insurrection.

We are not unfrequently at a loss to account in a rational way for the actions of men. We sometimes see men linger about taverns and saloons who could employ their time more profitably. Others set for a day and night over a game of cards and hardly leave their seats in the time—their wives at home doing their own work and his too, and their children learning no very wholesome lesson from their fathers example, and we ask ourselves why men do this? But men who have tasted the infatuations of a game, or felt the exhilarating effects of the cup can account for it all. Disinterested benevolence can be appreciated by all who can realize that it is "better to give than to receive." The self-sacrificing missionary who goes into a heathen land to enlighten the benighted idolater and teach him that he has a Saviour, is a benefactor to the race he labors among, and his mission is a mission of peace, he seeks not to subvert the government of the country in which he is domiciled or to interfere with the rights of its citizens. But there are some things that our feeble capacities cannot solve in a rational and philosophical manner, and one of them is, what Ossawatimie Brown and his brave little band of followers could have promised themselves in the way of substantial benefits in this world or the one to come, as a compensation for the wild adventure they made into Virginia and Maryland on a negro freeing excursion. Victory they surely never dreamed would perch upon their banner. Plunder they say, they did not want and murder and rapine their virtuous souls revolted at.

We are not willing to allow that they were lunatics, for there seems too much method in their madness—the scheme has been concocting for years—and to do what? To free the negroes! Well, that self imposed herculean task was about as nearly accomplished by Brown as it ever will be by any other leader. The shackles that bind the slaves are not so easily knocked off as to be accomplished by a few wild fanatics in a day.

SUICIDE.—As we were going to press we learn that Dr. Henry Shipley, formerly editor of the State Journal, committed suicide at Sacramento.

Death by Drowning.

In Sycamore Slough, nine miles northwest of this place, about 3 o'clock P. M. on Wednesday last Mr. Samuel Deter, aged about 39 years, was drowned in attempting to cross the slough on horseback. Mr. Deter emigrated to this county from western Ohio. The accident happened in an attempt to cross the slough by swimming it on a horse. After getting into swimming water the horse attempted to turn back, Mr. Deter in the effort to guide him by the rein, drew the horse over backward and freed himself from the horse but being unable to swim sank immediately. His body was recovered in about two hours after.

Justice Gibson held an inquest on the body on Thursday, the verdict of the jury being in accordance with the above facts.

Arrival of the Overland Mail.

We take the following telegraphic dispatch from the Bee of Wednesday:

LONE WILLOW SPRINGS, }
Nov. 16—1 P. M.

The Overland Mail arrived at Lone Willow Station to-day at 11 o'clock, with dispatches from St. Louis to October 27th, and from New York to the 26th.

A telegram from New York, October 26th, says that the steamship Persia had arrived, bringing Liverpool dates up to Saturday, the 15th.

Rumors from Zurich are contradictory. One report says that a treaty will soon be signed, and another European Congress will be assembled.

The exequatur of the American Consul at Leghorn has been withdrawn on account of political intrigues, and an explanatory note has been sent to Washington.

Nothing is known in relation to the Great Eastern's movements. The war steamer Hero is preparing for Vancouver Island. The Philadelphia and Liverpool Steamship Company has purchased the Glasgow steamers, and will maintain the line monthly in the winter and fortnightly in the summer.

The Bank of France has lost 51,000,000F. in specie.

The Pope prolongs his stay at the Castle of the Holy Spirit, owing to the agitation at Rome, where a striking manifestation took place in honor of the departure of the Sardinian minister.

Rumors are afloat of the approaching interview between the Emperors of Austria and Russia, and also that the Emperor of Austria will visit Napoleon.

A thrilling account is published of an attempt made by pirates and convicts, who were being conveyed by the ship Arrarret from Penang, to take possession of the ship. Out of 60 pirates, who came on deck in the dark, 28 were killed and others wounded. Captain Corrigan gallantly maintained possession of his ship.

The Theater Royal at Hull had been completely destroyed by fire.

The Russian Ambassadors at London, Paris, Berlin and Vienna, had been summoned by telegraph to meet the Emperor Alexander at Warsaw, on the 15th of October. The Emperor was expected to arrive at Odessa on the 17th. It is stated that notwithstanding the capture of Schamyl, the Caucasians are far from being subdued.

The Paris Constitutional of the 14th, publishes an article signed by Secretary Boniface, stating that the only question to be settled at Zurich is the Lombardy debt, the contracting powers being agreed on all other points.

The ship Quebec, of New Orleans, was wrecked off the Eddystone light house, October 11th.

Robert Stephenson, the eminent English engineer is dead.

In Italy, numerous arrests had been made at Parma, and the principal authors and accomplices in the murder Anvietto, officer of the ex-Duke, were in the hands of justice.

Garibaldi has issued a proclamation to the Army of Italy. He thus addresses them:

"Soldiers: The hour of a new struggle approaches; the enemy is threatening, and will, perhaps, attack us before many days are over. In addressing you, my old companions of Lombardy, I know I am not speaking to deaf men, and it is enough to tell them that we are going to fight the enemy of Italy. I will look to see you there, firm in your ranks."

REPORTED TRAGEDY.—A letter received in this city, says the S. F. Alta, of Nov. 13th, by the Golden Gate, dated at Acapulco, on board the steamer Uncle Sam (which left this port Oct. 20th), states that a lady in the second cabin of the Sam—name not given—had her throat cut with a jack-knife on the fourth day out of this port, and was not expected to live. No particulars are given of the occurrence.

FIDELITY.—Never forsake a friend when enemies gather thick around him—when sickness falls heavy upon him—when the world is dark and cheerless, this is the time to try friendship. They who turn from the scene of distress, or offer reasons why they should be excused from extending their sympathy and aid, betray their hypocrisy, and prove that selfish motives only prompt and move them. If you have a friend who loves you—who has studied your interest and happiness—defending you when persecuted and troubled, be sure to sustain him in adversity. Let him feel that his kindness is appreciated and that his friendship was not bestowed upon you in vain.

DIPLOMAS.—Persons to whom diplomas were awarded by the State Agricultural Society are notified that the same have been made out and are now ready for delivery.

MASONIC ANNIVERSARY.—The tenth anniversary of the introduction into California of Free Masonry, was celebrated on Tuesday last at San Francisco, by California Lodge No. 1, of F. and A. M.

ARRIVAL.—One hundred and fifty-two thousand nine hundred and ninety-two Mexican dollars arrived at San Francisco on Sunday, on the bark Adelaide, from Mazatlan.

PROCLAMATION OF REWARD.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, }
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT. }
WHEREAS, It is represented to me that the crime of "assault with intent to murder" was committed in the township of Washington, Yolo County, on the night of November 11th, 1859, upon the person of James Ashbury, by one MATHIAS BINGLEMAN, alias KELLER, and that he is at large and within this State. Said Bingleman is light built, five feet five inches in height, fresh complexion, blue eyes, brownish hair, no whiskers or mustache—weight about 130 pounds;

Now, therefore, by virtue of the authority in me vested by the Constitution and laws of this State, I hereby offer FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS REWARD for the arrest and conviction of the said Mathias Bingleman, alias Keller.

Done at Sacramento, California, this Fourteenth day of November, A. D. One Thousand Eight Hundred and Fifty-Nine.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the great Seal of State.

[SEAL] JOHN B. WELLER, Governor.

SUMMONS.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, County of Yolo.

The people of the State of California, to GEORGE W. TREADWAY, greeting: You are hereby summoned to appear before the undersigned, at his office, at Knight's Landing, on Friday, the 9th day of December, 1859, at 10 o'clock, a.m., to answer unto the complaint of J. J. RAGGERBY, who sues to recover the sum of $80, when judgment will be taken against you for the above amount, with costs and damages, if you fail to appear, and answer. To the Sheriff or any Constable of said County: Make due service and return hereof. Given under my hand this 11th day of November, 1859.

(Signed,) P. GIBSON, Justice of the Peace.

It appearing to my satisfaction that a cause of action exists in favor of the above named Plaintiff, and against the above named defendant, and that the above named defendant has left his usual place of abode, and conceals himself to avoid the service of summons, and after due diligence cannot be found within the State of California; Now, therefore, it is ordered, that service of summons be made by publication of the same in the KNIGHT'S LANDING NEWS, a weekly newspaper, published at Knight's Landing; for the space of four weeks, and that said defendant is required to answer in this case on or before the 9th day of December, A. D. 1859 at 10 o'clock A. M., at my office, at Knight's Landing, Cache Creek Township, Yolo County, California.

Given under my hand this 11th day of November, A. D. 1859.

(signed) P. GIBSON, Justice of the Peace.

I hereby certify the foregoing to be a true copy of the original summons and order of publication.

O. P. ALEXANDER, Constable.

LOUISA PAULLIN.—The little girl, Louisa Paullin, who was taken off from San Francisco on the steamer Uncle Sam by George Servey, was brought back on the Golden Gate. She was transferred at Acapulco. There was some talk on the Uncle Sam about lynching Servey.
The Telegram gives the following extract of a letter received from Capt. Thomas Huntington, commander of the Uncle Sam, by William R. Garrison, of San Francisco:
A few days after leaving San Francisco,
I discovered that little Louisa Paullin, a child about eleven years old, had come on board the steamer with a man who called himself Smith. He had a second cabin ticket for Smith and child, and she occupied a double berth with him for two days. As soon as I learned the facts of the case, and that she was not his own child, I put her in a room with a lady who was kind enough to keep an eye on her. I overhauled Smith, and did not allow him to speak to her afterwards. If I had met the Orizaba at Acapulco, on her trip up, I should have put her on board and sent her back to her relatives in San Francisco. The passengers were very much incensed against Smith, and for a time threatened summary vengeance upon him.

OUT OF DANGER.—James Ashbury,
the proprietor of the road bar on the Telegraph road, two and a half miles from Washington, Yolo county, who was dangerously wounded by a pistol shot from the hands of two men, on Friday night, the 11th inst., we are happy to say is considered out of danger by his physicians, and is in a fair way to recover.

FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS REWARD.—
His Excellency Gov. Weller has offered a reward of $500 for the arrest of Mathias Bingleman alias Keller, who attempted to murder James Ashbury, near the town of Washington, in Yolo county, on the 11th inst.

LIBERAL.—A citizen of San Francisco has offered to give $26,000 in cash towards the establishment of a Female Seminary in that city, provided an equal sum is contributed by others.

LOST AND NOT FOUND.—The steamer General Redington, which would have been raised and secured on the 11th inst.,
but for the freshet, has not been seen,
reports to the contrary notwithstanding.
Some portions of her light work have been discovered at various points down the Sacramento river.

UNITED STATES SOLDIERS DESERT-ING.—We understand, says the San Francisco Times, that four of the soldiers on board the Golden Gate contrived to get away from the steamer after she was in the bay, in the fog. It is reported a harder set of fellows never were found together; that they robbed and abused the steerage passengers with impunity; drove them from the table, and in every possible way disgraced themselves and the name of soldiers. It should, however, be stated that at most there were of the whole two hundred not over a dozen Americans, the balance being foreigners of the lowest description.

MRS. PARTINGTON says that, when she was a gal, she used to go to parties, and always had a beau to extort her home,
but now, says she, the gals undergo all sorts of deprivations; the task of extorting them home revolves on their dear selves.
The old lady drew down her specs and thanked her stars that she had lived in other days, when men could depreciate the worth of the female sex. "Besides," she added, "so many men are murdered every day, that you gals must make haste and get husbands as soon as you can, or there won't be any left."—"Why so, aunt?"—"Why, I see by the paper that we have got almost twelve thousand post offices, and nearly all on 'em despatches a-mail every day."

UNITED STATES BRANCH MINT.—This institution will close for the annual settlement on the 9th of December.

It is due to the traveling public to acknowledge the very liberal patronage heretofore extended to the ST. GEORGE, during the time it has been in charge of the present proprietor, and it is designed that it shall be, if possible, still more deserving of the public favor.
Its location is in the very center of business, and within a moment's walk of all the the popular places of amusement.
Carriages will at all times be in attendance to convey passengers to and from the boats, cars, etc.

Thanksgiving Proclamation.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA,
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT.

In accordance with established usage, as the Chief Executive of the State, I hereby designate and set apart Thursday, the 24th inst., as a day of thanksgiving and prayer. It is understood that this day has been designated by nearly all our sister States in order that it may be a National Festival, in which the whole American people, as a united family, may supplicate the Throne of Almighty God for the preservation of that Union which has placed us amongst the freest and happiest of nations. And I do earnestly invoke the good people of this State, abstaining from all secular pursuits, to assemble in their respective places of worship, and with sincere and contrite hearts offer up thanks to the Supreme Ruler of the universe for the manifold blessings conferred upon us during the past year, and humbly and fervently supplicate Him that he will continue us a free, prosperous and Witness my hand and the Great Seal of the State, at Sacramento, this 23d day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and fifty-nine.

JOHN B. WELLER.

Attest: FERRIS FORMAN, Secretary of State.

POETRY.

Night Thoughts.

'Tis sweeter than all else below,
The daylight and its duty done,
To fold the arms for rest, and so Relinquish all regards but one;
To see her features in the dark;
To lie and meditate, once more,
Some tone he had not heard before;
Some tone he had not heard before;
Then from beneath his head to take
Her notes, her picture, and her glove.
Put there for joy when he shall wake,
And press them to the heart of love;
And then to whisper "Wife," and pray
To live so long as not to miss
That unimaginable day
Which farther seems the nearer 'tis;
And still from joy's unfathom'd well
To drink, in sleep, while on her brow
Of innocence ineffable.
The laughing bridal roses blow.

HAPPY is the man who has a little home and a little angel in it of a Saturday night. A house, no matter how little, provided it will hold two or so—no matter how humbly furnished, provided hope is in it; let the winds blow—close the curtains. What if they are calico, or plain white, without border, tassel or any such thing. Let the rain come down, heap up the fire. No matter if you have not a candle to bless yourself with, for what a beautiful light glowing coals makes, rendering, clouding, shedding a sunset through the room—just enough to talk by—not loud as in the highways—nor rapid as in the hurrying world, but softly, slowly whispering with pauses between, for the storm without and the thoughts within to fill up. Then wheel the sofa round before the fire; no matter if the sofa is a settee, uncushioned at that, if it is just long enough for two, or say two and a half in it. How sweetly the music of silver bells from the time to come, falls on the listening heart then! How mournfully swells the chimes of "the days that are no more."

A TELLING PUN.—"Do you know who built this bridge?" said a person to Ike. "No, replied the wit; "but if you go over you'll be told!"

The young lady who was suffering from the ear-ache was completely cured by a young man whispering a few words in it.

The Death of Children.

The following gem we take from the Cincinnati Enquirer. None but a father could have penned it:

Those who have never lost a child are unable to understand how great a void the death of one little one can make. There is, we think, nothing on earth that casts so long and so wide and black a shadow as a small coffin.

It is emphatically the shadow of death that freezes a parent's heart. Small as is an infant's tomb, it sometimes is capacious enough to hold the brightest hopes and dearest joys of a whole family circle.

The little child is often the bright focus where all the rays of gladness in a household center, and from which they are reflected again over happy hearts; and when this central light is eclipsed, great darkness falls over all.

How many there must be in Heaven, gathered up from all climes, even from heathen shores, who have died so young as to retain no memory of earth, and to whom the world of glory seems as their native land; whose souls were washed and regenerated so early that no stain of this world was ever visible there.

Whatever wound of sin there may have been, has healed without a scar; their every thought has been moulded by the scenery and society of heaven, and they stand continually before the Father. In how large a sense may we say, "Of such is the Kingdom of Heaven."

Gossip.—Gossip is the bane of social life; always indicating a little mind, having affinity with petty concerns; often a malicious mind, delighting in traducing others; irreverence for truth, risking the violation of it for the pleasure of telling stories, which may be false, often are known to be so; great lack of honor, a sneaking disposition, saying behind the back of another what would not be said before his face; presumptive want of power to talk on nobler subjects—at least, lack of interest in them. Male gossips are worse than female. Women gossip chiefly about domestic life, love, marriage, flirtations, servants, entertainments—and a world of mischief they do there—of heart-burnings, heart-sinkings and heart-breakings—of broken ties and alienated affections. But men gossip too. Oh, what keen, biting, withering gossipings they have—half untrue, wholly needless; full of envy, hatred, and all uncharitableness.

PROCRASTINATION.—It has truly been said that "procrastination is the thief of time." How many things we leave undone altogether, simply because we defer them from time to time, instead of improving the present moment. Could we so discipline ourselves as never to defer to another period that which could be performed at the present hour, how much more we should accomplish; and as we looked back from year to year, how much better satisfied we should feel. Instead of vain regrets, there would be joyful thankfulness.

Would that we could impress upon our young friends the importance of improving the present moment, and performing every duty as it presents itself—not deferring to another period, nor waiting for a more convenient season. The habits which you form in youth must go with you through life. See to it that they be not those which will cause you unceasing, unavailing regret.—Hesperian.

HAY SEED FOR HOGS.—A correspondent of the Country Gentleman writes, in addition to the grain and meal given to growing hogs in the sty, they should have a daily allowance of green clover, or in winter, when this is not available, a liberal allowance of hay seed from the barn, mixed with their slop, which they will eat with avidity. He knows of no mode by which so great an amount of growth and weight can be induced with equal cost of food, in the winter season, as by this haying system.

A man in this State who had a brother hung, informed his friends in Ireland that his "brother on a recent occasion addressed a large public meeting, and just as he finished, the platform gave way and he fell and broke his neck."

The river at this point has fallen 5 ft.
